ARMY AND NAVY NEWS TO IMPROVE BIG PLOT.

Battleships with Turbines.

[From The Tribune Bureau.]

Washington, July 16. ENGINES FOR NEW WARSHIPS.-The decision of the Navy Department to have one of the battle-ships—that to be built at Newport News—equipped with reciprocating engines instead of the Parsons turbine, is the result of much study applied to the vexatious problem of naval propulsion. Some of the experts borned that both battleships recently vexatious problem of naval propulsion. Some of the experts hoped that both battleships recently contracted for would be equipped with turbines,
but it early became apparent that both would have to have the American Curtis type, since the EngIsh Parsons turbine was not entirely suited to naval purposes without materially changing the plans of the ship. Those who control the Curtis turbine refused to allow the contractors at Newport News to install it without paying for the privilege an amount which would have greatly increased the contract price. The Navy Department realizes that it has made a bargain in the case of the battleship to be built at Newport News, and there was little disposition to make any change. The prime advantage to be gained by this arrangement for the motive power of the latest two battleships to be designed is that there will be another opportunity of direct comparison of two ships of identical design, one operated by turbines find the other by the ordinary reciprocating engines. This circumstance, with the opportunities afforded by the three scouts,
ought to leave nothing in doubt. The navy is now turning its attention to internal combustion engines as likely to supplant steam for propulsion power in the near future.

WEST POINT TRAINING.

Recommendation That It Be Broadened with Post-Graduate Work.

Washington, July 16,-"An officer of the army should be an all round educated gentleman. As it is now his entire training, both preparatory at the academy and post-graduate, is almost purely technical." This statement is the foundation for the recommendation by the board of visitors to the Military Academy for a general revision of the scheme of academic instruction. The board points out that when the present curriculum was established there was no opportunity for post-graduate professional instruction. Now it may be readily had for every branch of the service. It would seem that the time spent at West Point need not be so exclusively devoted to technical studies, and that by lessening the requirements in them to some extent, and possibly lengthening the course a year, the cadet can be graduated with an education approaching in general culture that acquired in the best of American colleges. It also would make possible through independent reading a more natural and broader development than is now the case.

The board states that hazing is now entirely a thing of the past, and that it would seem to have been permanently stamped out. The remarkable statement is made that there has been no death among the cadets from disease of any kind in more than twelve years, and the corps of cadets is in a high state of efficiency, with the moral tone of the best.

Some of the recommendations are that the superintendent have the rank of brigadier general; that interest be allowed upon deposits of cadets' money; that the enlisted men at the post have 50 cents a day extra pay; that Constitution Island, opposite the post on the Hudson, be purchased for drill purposes and target ranges at a cost of $150,000; that two additional tactical officers of the rank of major be added to the academy staff; that the cadets have regular target practice, winter and summer; that a school be established for children of officers and enlisted men; that periods of physical probation for cadets be abolished and that findings of medical officers shall no longer be disregarded so as to maintain the highest standard of physi-

The board concludes that the academy is in the hands of a most zealous and efficient super-intendent, Colonel Hugh L. Scott; that he has the earnest and hearty co-operation of high class officers and assistants in all departments, and that the a ademy deserves at the hands of Congress the best that can be provided.

FIRE IN COPPER MINE.

Work Suspended by Amalgamated in West Colusa Shaft.

[By Telegraph to The Tribune.] Butte, Mont., July 16.-Fire which has been smouldering in the depths of the Minnie Healy mine to-day filled the West Colusa mine, one of the big copper properties of the Amalgamated Copper Company, so that it became dangerous to permit miners to work and operations were suspended until the fire fighters could reach the fire, which is confined to an area of about forty feet. A half dozen diamond drills are working in the burning ground, furnishing openings through which the affected portion of the mine is being flooded. The West Colusa employs about six hundred men.

SLEEPLESS; KILLS SELF AND CHILD.

Husband, Returning from Business, Finds Corpses in Gas Filled Room.

Priven to desperation by nervous troubles, pro-during insomnia, Mrs. Henrietta Reuter, thirty-feur years old, of No. 459 East 57th street, killed her daughter Marion, ten years old, and herself her daughter Marion, ten years old, and herself at her home yesterday by turning on the gas. The bodies were discovered by her husband, who had been away on a business trip over night. He called in the police and an ambulance was summoned from Flower Hespital, but both mother and daughter were dead when help arrived.

All of the windows of the room had been closed and the keyhole was plugged with cotton. A note was found addressed to the husband, in which the dead woman said that she no longer wanted to live on account of her nervous troubles, and that she couldn't bear to leave her child. Coroner Acritelli is estigated the case and gave permission for burial.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed yesterday in the United States District Court against W. Robert Coyne, plumber, no address given, by Otto Bernz, with a claim of $2.286. The petitioner says that he sold goods to the alleged bankrupt, first under the style of Coyne Brothers Company, for which a note of $982 was given, and $300 of the sum paid by checks signed by W. R. Coyne. Later, the petitioner says, he sold goods to the bankrupt, then trading as the Coyne Trade School, to the amount of $1.604, for which W. R. Coyne gave an individual note, which was never paid, leaving a total of $2,286 due. It is charged that Coyne on April 16, 1907, transferred to A. J. Swift all of the assets of the Coyne Trade School, at Tsuth avenue and 24th street, receiving notes for $40,000 and cash, the exact amount of the latter being unknown, and that the transfer was in the nature of a preferential payment to "hinder, delay and defraud creditors." About May 1, it is charged, Coyne laft New York, and, with his family, went to live in St. Louis, and is now without the jurisdiction of the court.
